case of why it is time for all believers to rediscover the beauty and joy of gathering as brothers and sisters in Christ. Is the local church essential for your life as a Christian? Is our gathering really that important to God's mission in the world? The authors answer those questions with a resounding "yes!" They show us that the future of God's church will not be centered around livestreams. They invite to rediscover the joy of committing to a local congregation and gathering regularly in-person as the family of God.
